

B

Abstract

A score management system comprises mobile terminals and a score management server which are connected to each other via a wireless communication network. The score management server stores score data, receives a request for displaying score status from the mobile terminal, transmits data representing the score status based on the stored score data to the mobile terminal, receives a request for inputting new score data from the mobile terminal, and updates the stored score data based on the received request for inputting the new score data.